Pope Urges End To Nationalism

Pontiff Appeals For Universal Brotherhood

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI in his annual Christmas message Tuesday night urged nations to sweep away racism, nationalism and militarism that are "the dramatic and frightful aspect of the contemporary world."

"We cannot help being alarmed at a militarism no longer focused on the legitimate defense of the countries concerned or on the maintenance of world peace, but tending rather to build up stockpiles of weapons, a process which induces men to make mutual fear the treacherous and inhuman basis of world peace," the Pope declared.

The Roman Catholic pontiff carried forward his appeal, first made after seeing the poor of Bombay's slums early this month, that nations disarm and use part of the money saved to succor needy nations.

There should be a "generous-minded investigation of how — at least in part and by stages — military expenditure could be diverted to humanitarian ends," the Pope declared. "Hunger and misery, sickness and ignorance still cry out for remedy."

The Pope said nationalism was rising anew after "the tragic experience" of World War II with its "closed outlooks, exclusive interests and self-sufficient ambitions, if not greedy and overbearing forms of imperialism."

"Nationalism divides peoples, putting them in opposition to one another," he said. "As for racism, the Pope said it 'separates and opposes the different branches constituting the great human family, resulting in pride, mistrust, exclusivism, discrimination and sometimes even oppression.'"

The pontiff, in the second Christmas address of his reign, said he was convinced that "the world needs love, needs to break the bonds of selfishness within itself."

He delivered what he called "our program," as he read his message in Italian in a recorded television and radio broadcast by the Vatican radio and networks throughout Europe and beyond.

"Democracy to which all mankind today appeals," he said, "must take on a more universal aspect, which will transcend all the obstacles that stand in the way of the effective brotherhood of all men."

Fate Of Freighter's Crew Still Mystery

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Enlargements of pictures of the wrecked freighter San Patrick, aground in the Aleutian Islands, were examined closely Tuesday for a possible clue to the fate of 32 crewmen, feared dead.

Officials of the Adak Naval Station, 120 miles northeast of the shipwreck, inspected the enlargements trying to determine if the crew was able to launch the four 32-foot lifeboats the freighter carried.

No trace of the men or lifeboats has been found in a two-day search by a Navy plane of the half dozen islands in the Delarof group where the 521-foot Liberian grain ship went aground in a North Pacific storm Thursday night.

Possible Aid Cutoff Hinted In Statement

Support Based On Regime Free Of Interference

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States warned South Viet Nam's restive military leaders Tuesday night that continued U.S. support is based on existence of a Saigon government "free of improper interference."

The terse U.S. statement was issued with President Johnson's knowledge and approval, after South Viet Nam's armed forces commander, Gen. Nguyen Khanh, criticized U.S. opposition to military domination of the civilian government.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey, in making the statement public, declined to say whether the tough wording amounted to a U.S. ultimatum that there would be a cutoff in U.S. aid if the South Vietnamese military do not leave the civilian government alone.

However, the statement seemed to come the closest yet to hinting such a possibility. Taylor Efforts Endorsed

It also fully endorsed efforts of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor to restore civilian authority over the South Viet Nam military.

McCloskey said the statement speaks for itself and he would not characterize it as an ultimatum.

However, the U.S. officials said the statement was in response to an order of the day broadcast by Gen. Nguyen Khanh in Saigon Tuesday night which referred indirectly to the United States.

Khanh stated the military has the right to step in to settle disputes affecting the civilian government of Viet Nam and called on the army to face its common enemies — communism and colonialism in any form.

The broadcast was regarded here as an implied criticism of the United States.

It was apparent that U.S. officials did not expect Khanh to remain long as armed forces commander.

But there was support here for the government of Premier Tran Van Huong to try to work out differences with young military officers who purged the High National Council Saturday night.

Rusk In Contact With LBJ Secretary of State Dean Rusk was in contact with President Johnson at his LBJ Ranch during the day on the developments in Viet Nam.

McCloskey, in making this known, would not say under what conditions U.S. support to South Viet Nam would be withdrawn.

Khanh's broadcast said the military leaders could "settle all disputes" if the disputes create a "situation favorable to the common enemies."

In words apparently directed at the United States as well as North Viet Nam, Khanh called on the armed forces to "live poor but proud as free citizens of an independent country rather than in ease and shame as slaves of the foreigners and Communists."

Algeria Denounces U.S. Action In Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Algeria accused the Johnson administration Tuesday of dumping the New Frontier policies of John F. Kennedy and "inaugurating its African policy" with a reprisal attack on the Congo and the whole of Africa.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, in a Security Council reply to Algerian Ambassador Tewfik Bouattoura, denied that the U.S.-Belgian joint action to drop paratroops on Stanleyville Nov. 24 had any reason other than to save foreign hostages from Congo rebels who threatened to kill and cook them.

Representing hard-line African delegates who want the council to condemn the U.S.-Belgian action as aggression, Bouattoura charged that the United States was out to crush all nationalist movements. He said the Stanleyville operation masked U.S. and Belgian colonialist motives.

Floods Isolate Oregon Community

Three Quizzed About Bazooka Firing At U.N.

NEW YORK (AP) — Three men described as Cuban nationalists were charged Tuesday night with having fired a bazooka shot toward the United Nations headquarters Dec. 11.

NEW YORK (AP) — Three men were questioned Tuesday night about the Dec. 11 bazooka firing at the United Nations building and authorities said arrests were imminent.

A fourth man also was sought, police said. Police did not identify the men in custody, but a Spanish-language newspaper editor who said his paper helped bring about the surrender of the three men described them as Cuban nationalists.

Cuban Minister of Industry Che Guevara was speaking to the General Assembly of the United Nations when the missile, fired from the Queens side of the East River toward the U.N. building, fell short and exploded in the river.

The three men were brought to the 108th Precinct station house in Long Island City, Queens, shortly after 5 p.m. and questioned for hours.

A Manhattan attorney, Peter James Johnson, said he was representing the men and that they had surrendered by prearrangement.

Soviet Union Balking On U.N. Compromise

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union appeared to be balking Tuesday night on a compromise plan to clear up urgent year-end U.N. business without a U.S.-Soviet showdown on voting rights in the General Assembly.

Soviet bloc delegates emerged from a caucus at U.N. headquarters late in the day and several expressed doubts about the plan.

Bank Truck Holdup Clues Sought In Abandoned Car

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Clues to a bandit team that made a stunning half-million dollar cash haul from a bank truck were sought Tuesday in an abandoned stolen car, a section of heavy twine and the memories of two bank messengers.

The twine was in the trunk of the stolen car, found about two blocks from St. Anthony's church. The robbers held four priests, a custodian and the bank messengers at gunpoint in the church rectory while they looted the truck Monday.

"We are going over the car with a fine-tooth comb," said Police Chief Marinus Ritter. "There is a possibility that this is not the car."

Ritter said he was awaiting results of comparison tests on twine found in the car and that

Floods, Snow, Wind Batter West Coast

Disaster Declared In Oregon, California

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Oregon and four sparsely populated counties of Northern California, lashed by heavy snow and rain, high winds and floods, were declared disaster areas Tuesday.

Gov. Mark Hatfield asked Oregon citizens to travel only for emergency purposes in areas affected by floods and snow and mud slides.

Hatfield's office said a Montana doctor — Joseph R. Dickson of Chinook — was on a bridge over the John Day River when flood waters swept bridge and car away.

A Reno, Nev., television engineer died of exposure after losing his way in a High Sierra snowstorm while checking a microwave relay tower west of Reno. Phil Selheimer, 23, died shortly after sheriff's deputies found him.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California designated Humboldt, Mendocino, Siskiyou, and Del Norte counties as disaster areas as flooding streams forced thousands of persons from their homes.

John Butler, 50, vanished in the Kalamath River near Orleans in Humboldt County when a road collapsed beneath his jeep.

Huge snow and mud slides blocked highways and rail lines in the Pacific Northwest. Winds up to 100 miles an hour battered Colorado.

Flood waters and a shattered dike on the raging Eel River near Fortuna in northeastern California chased more than 2,000 residents to higher ground during the night.

A Weather Bureau official said the Eel River flooding was so bad "it could be expected to happen once in 1,000 years."

The Eel flows through sparsely populated forest country. The largest town in the area is Eureka, population 30,000. Deer, rabbits, and thousands of field mice joined man in the flight from the flooding Eel. Overflowing creeks isolated Covelo, Calif., a town of 2,000 about 150 miles north of San Francisco. But, before its phones went dead, the town reported plenty of supplies on hand.

Continuing heavy rains spawned floods and slides that closed a 200-mile stretch of U.S. Highway 101 from Willits, Calif., into Oregon. Clogged passes in the Oregon Cascade Mountains blocked Southern Pacific trains "for at least the next 24 hours," an official said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators said Tuesday the successful first test flight of the sophisticated new F111 — warplane won't halt plans for more probing into the huge and controversial contract for their production.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee seeks to determine whether the contract actually was awarded to the high bidder on the basis of an interior design, and if so whether influence was involved.

Troubleshooter Strives To Head Off Dock Strike

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds met with longshoremen for one hour Tuesday and scheduled meetings with ship-owners under orders from the White House to try to thwart an East and Gulf Coast dock strike.

Reynolds said after the meeting, "We cannot afford to be pessimistic in these matters. If the parties found it possible to resolve their differences up there (in New York) we can do it here."

He referred to the agreement reached by North Atlantic locals of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) in last Wednesday in New York. The current negotiations involve the Gulf and South Atlantic locals, who want a 6 cent more an hour wage hike and no reduction in the size of the work gang.

Reynolds said he would meet next with shippers and then come back to longshoremen Wednesday. He is acting as the go-between at the direction of President Johnson and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz.

Longshoremen in Galveston and Houston have eliminated night work as their way of saying "we have no contract, we can work as we please" one union official said.

ILA officials considered a Gulf Coast walkout would be a mandate at Atlantic locals to join in the strike. There has been some dissatisfaction in East Coast ports over the settlement reached last week.

Lady Bird Marks 52nd Birthday

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — Lady Bird Johnson celebrated her 52nd birthday Tuesday strolling around the LBJ Ranch with the President and opening her gifts at the breakfast table.

Her favorite birthday present was the arrival at the Johnson 438-acre spread of their daughter Lynda Bird, 20, completing the family togetherness for the Christmas holidays.

The White House said the First Lady arose bright and early Tuesday morning, took a walk with her husband and later they both rode along the Pedernales River in their golf cart.

The family ate breakfast at the kitchen table as Mrs. Johnson opened her many gifts.

"Coma Mother" Dies Not Knowing Of Baby

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Sandra Kay Westover, 19, who had been in a coma for more than eight months, died Tuesday without knowing that she gave birth to a baby girl.

Mrs. Westover, of Akron, went into the coma while the child, Derona Lynn, was being delivered by Caesarian section in April 8. She lost consciousness after a brief heart stoppage.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson Tuesday approved development of a gigantic new military transport plane — the biggest in the world — that will be capable of taking at jet speed between 500 and 700 troops to any corner of the map.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced after a budget meeting with Johnson that the President had given a go-ahead to the $750 million development program.

McNamara said that while his interest in the craft is purely military, there obviously are implications of a civilian commercial potential.

He said the plane would have gross takeoff weight of 725,000 pounds—36.5 tons—including a "payload" of up to 250,000 pounds.

It would have a range of 5,000 to 7,000 miles depending on its payload weight, at a speed comparable to the 550 miles an hour of a Boeing 707. It thus would be subsonic in speed, and not comparable to the supersonic craft which now is on the drawing boards.

McNamara and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff conferred with the President at his LBJ Ranch about three hours about budget matters. Afterward the Cabinet member told reporters about the new plane and also announced.

—Gen. Curtis E. LeMay will be succeeded as Air Force chief of staff effective Feb. 1 by Gen. Joseph P. McConnell, now vice chief of staff.

—McNamara's prior estimate that the defense budget will be under $50 billion again next year has gone down still further. McNamara expects it to be perhaps $50 billion less than the current fiscal year's $49.8 billion total.

Total Spending

Defense spending usually accounts for more than half of the overall budget — indicating Johnson may be successful in efforts to keep total federal spending under $100 billion in the 1966 fiscal year beginning July 1.

McNamara said he could not offer many details about the new transport plane — given an experimental designation of "CX" — because it has not been designed. He said interest in development of it has been expressed by the Douglas, Lockheed and Boeing aircraft companies.

But McNamara said that as contemplated now the new craft would "have five times the productivity" of the Air Force's latest transport giant, the C-141 fan-jet "which is just now coming into operation."

He said "the cost per ton mile would be about 30 to 40 per cent less than the C-141."

Italy's 13th Vote Will Tie Record

ROME (UPI) — A Christian Democratic attempt to elect Giovanni Leone as president of Italy with the support of the neo-Fascists failed Tuesday in Parliament. It forced a record-equalling 13th ballot in the marathon voting for the presidency.

Leone, a Neapolitan lawyer, led the field of presidential candidates for the 12th successive time. But he fell short again of the 482-vote majority required for election.

Two ballots were taken Tuesday — the 11th and 12th futile efforts in seven days to find a successor to Antonio Segni, who resigned after a stroke left him partly paralyzed. In Tuesday morning's ballot Leone scored 382 votes and raised the total to 401 on the afternoon's tally.

It was Leone's highest total so far but failed to break the electoral deadlock. A new ballot was called for Wednesday. Wednesday's 13th vote will equal the record for the longest president election contest in Europe, set in France 11 years ago with the late Rene Coty was on the 13th ballot.

AGEN, France (UPI) — Someone cut himself a mighty Christmas tree. A 26-foot fir in the Jayen Public Gardens in the city center disappeared.

'Possums' Miss. Answer To Turkeys For Negroes

RULEVILLE, Miss. (AP) — send donated food hundreds of miles away when there are people begging for food in the very city where the rally was held, by sending two "possums" and a sack of sweet potatoes to Chicago.

The shipment was announced by the pro-segregation council in "reciprocation for the 20,000 turkeys" that Negro comedian Dick Gregory, Sammy Davis Jr. and columnist Drew Pearson plan to send to the state.

An accompanying letter to the three said "we are enclosing two Mississippi 'possums' and a sack of sweet potatoes to help feed the Negroes of Chicago whom you are neglecting and will not have a turkey this Christmas."

Ruleville is the home of Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss. A council statement said "many individuals might consider sending 'possums' and turkeys to a rally a childish stunt."

"However, if they would but think a minute, they would see how absurd it is on the part of these people staging this rally to send 20,000 turkeys to another state in which they know absolutely nothing of the problems, when right in the city where the rally was held, there are countless thousands of hungry Negroes who will not have enough food, much less a turkey, on Christmas Day."

"These people are using Mississippi as a 'whipping boy' in their attempt to stage a cheap publicity stunt for the purpose of raising funds."

"Mississippians have over the years met the needs of deserving people."

"The purpose of the council sending the gift to them was to show how inconsistent it is to

Commons Vote May Save Life Of Young Killer

LONDON (AP) — Peter Anthony Dunford sits in the death cell at Wakefield Prison condemned to hang for murdering twice.

The handsome killer, 18, reenacted the traditional death cell drama of a man waiting for the end. He played cards or checked with the prison guard, or just lay on his narrow cot, hands behind his head, staring at the ceiling.

Dunford originally was due to die at 8 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 7. But he has appealed against the sentence.

Now it is almost certain that he will not hang.

For a vote Monday night of 355 to 179 in the House of Commons to abolish the death penalty for capital murder perhaps has saved him.

The bill must now win approval in the House of Lords. But the Commons vote was so convincing that most legislators think that the Lords will approve it too — though in the past they always have opposed the abolition of the death penalty.

Britain's selective homicide law metes out death to some and prison for others. A man who kills on two occasions dies — and Dunford twice killed.

He was only 16 when he killed first. He and another teen-ager, Frank Crayton, were arguing about the Fascist British Union movement, of which Dunford was a member. Dunford stabbed Crayton in the back five times.

He was sentenced to be detained in Wakefield Prison "at the Queen's pleasure," as the sentence reads.

His second victim was a fellow prisoner at Wakefield, Terry Buckingham. Dunford used the same method — the stab in the back.

Dunford denied guilt but was convicted and, because he had killed before, was condemned to die.

Four Killed In Md. Traffic Mishaps

By The Associated Press

Four persons were killed in Maryland traffic accidents Tuesday, raising the state's 1964 highway fatality count to 578, four more than at Dec. 22 a year ago.

One victim, Winston McFarland of Baltimore, was a passenger in one of two cars involved in a collision in northwest Baltimore.

A soldier and sailor en route home to Selinsgrove, Pa., on Christmas leave died in the collision of their small foreign-car and a tractor-trailer on the Baltimore-Harrisburg Expressway at Maryland Line.

Police identified the dead as Army Pvt. Barry L. Lewis, 21, and Navy Aviation Ordnance Man 3.C. Terry L. Stauffer, 20, both of Selinsgrove. Lewis was stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky., and Stauffer was stationed at Norfolk, Va.

The child struck and killed in Prince Georges County was Cindy Jean Goodwin, one of 14 children of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Goodwin of Ritchie, Md.

REYES QUADS—Sinai Hospital reports the quadruplets of Army Pvt. Angel Reyes and his wife, Betty, are doing nicely. The quads, the first born in Baltimore since 1951, were 35 days old yesterday. They are, top left, Pamela, 4 pounds 11 1/2 ounces, and Patricia, 4 pounds, 12 1/2 ounces; bottom left, Paula, 4 pounds 1 ounce, and Anthony Louis, 4 pounds 8 1/2 ounces. (AP Photofax)

Graham Feels Pro-Barry Wire Drive Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Billy Graham came to the capital Tuesday to talk about a world conference on evangelism.

But Washington being Washington, much of the evangelist's news conference was taken up with questions racial and political. Graham said he received "more than a million telegrams, some more than three feet long" urging him to endorse one candidate or the other in last November's presidential election.

Most of them by far pleaded the case of "one candidate." Smiling, he declined to say which: Barry Goldwater or President Johnson. But he said previously the preponderance of the telegrams called for an endorsement of Goldwater. Graham said there was definite evidence it was an organized drive because of the similarity of wording in the telegrams — and that he met a man in Georgia who told him he was in charge of the drive in that state.

The telegrams, he said, are being bound up because they might have a certain historical interest. But he mused that the money might have been better spent in the cause of evangelism.

Some of the telegrams advised him not to endorse anyone because of what he called the importance of his ministry. He got the same kind of advice from President Johnson when he visited the White House before the election.

The President, Graham said, told him, "Now, Billy, you stay out of politics."

He got similar counsel from Richard M. Nixon in 1960, the evangelist said.

Fourth Tragedy Strikes Family

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The policeman's voice on the telephone seemed to fade away for Ray Gill, 47, after the first words.

"I have had news . . . one is dead and the other critical . . ."

"Oh, God, not again," said Gill, touched by tragedy Tuesday for the fourth time in 14 years.

This time it was his stepdaughter, Mrs. Garnet Okulovich, 26, mother of three children killed when a car plunged 40 feet off a downtown Akron bridge into a construction site Tuesday.

First it had been a 17-year-old stepdaughter, shot to death in 1950 in her hometown of Meadowbridge, W. Va. Two years later it was Gill's only stepson, Bernard, 20, dead when the car he was driving crashed into a pole in Meadowbridge.

Fifteen months ago, the call was about Gill's son-in-law, Samuel Okulovich, 26, husband of the woman killed Tuesday. He died when his car hit a steel utility pole in downtown Akron.

Mrs. Okulovich's sister, Mrs. Martha Petty, a passenger in the car Tuesday, was injured critically.

Gill has been a stepfather for 26 years, but neighbors said he was like a real father to his family.

PISA, Italy (UPI) — Italy is developing a vertical takeoff and landing jet transport plane. Pisa University sources said Tuesday.

Plans Moving Smoothly For Inaugural Festivities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Things were going buzzingly smooth Tuesday on preparations for presidential inaugural festivities Jan. 18-20 expected to cost $1.5 million.

The inaugural committee reported everything on schedule. Bleachers are going up along the parade route and the first 14 parade entries have been approved.

The committee has an emergency snow plan in case a storm hits as it did four years ago. "I would say the committee is never without one," Chairman Dale Miller told a news conference.

But, he added, "We proceed on the optimistic basis that the weather will be salubrious."

The committee has its usual housing problems for the thousands planning to come. Miller said the problems there are normal — "grim."

The committee has suggested to each state that it select for its parade float some serious a southern state.

theme that would denote perhaps "some aspect of the Great Society," Miller said. Presidential Johnson's theme of his administration is "the Great Society."

"However, it doesn't mean that it will be a static or sterile parade in any sense," Miller said.

Each state is entitled to a governor's car, one band, one marching unit and one float. Texas, however, will have two bands — from the University of Texas and Southwest State College, the President's alma mater.

Early Candidate

BELLWOOD, Neb. (UPI) — Cecil E. Higginbotham is looking for a running mate.

Higginbotham, a 36-year-old electrician who this week announced his candidacy for president of the United States in the 1968 election, says he wants a woman running mate from a southern state.

epidemic that has triggered fox chases through city streets.

This city, 60 miles northeast of Knoxville, has been the hardest hit urban area in the state, which has had more than 500 confirmed cases of rabies this year.

Greene County is a focal point for the outbreak, but the situation also has reached epidemic proportions in Franklin and Williamson counties in middle Tennessee.

A fox believed rabid attacked Ronnie Lynn Gosnell, 9, Tuesday as he and a companion searched nearby woods for a Christmas tree.

Several persons here have been scratched by rabid cats, and one was bitten by a dog with rabies, Health Department officials said. So far, no human deaths have occurred.

A quarantine requires that all animals running loose be shot on sight. Police say Greenvilleans don't hesitate to crack down

$21,500 In Wigs Taken

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Two burglaries resulted in loss of $21,500 in wigs Monday night. Police said thugs took 200 women's wigs valued at $20,000 from the June Russell shop.

About six blocks from the wig shop, thugs broke into an establishment called the "wiggy." Police said the burglars took 38 wigs and four toupees. The stolen goods were valued at about $1,500.

Bandit Returns $19,000 Taken In Bank Stickup

SANDY SPRING, Md. (AP) — "There is no question about a package arrived at the First National Bank of Sandy Spring Tuesday and almost went unnoticed until employees discovered it contained about $19,000 of the money taken from the bank's Olney Branch by a holdup man last Tuesday.

Recovery of the money was announced by the bank's president, George Nesbitt.

It was contained in a square-shaped carton, wrapped in brown paper and tied with string, and addressed in pencil to the Olney branch, where a man wearing a halloween mask got $20,600 in the holdup.

Nesbitt said the package had no return address and appeared to have been postmarked in Washington. This was confirmed later by county authorities after the money was turned over to them and the FBI for study.

While the package was addressed to the Olney branch, it actually was received at the bank's main office in Sandy Spring about 8 a.m., Nesbitt reported.

"It layed here for a while before anybody thought to open it," he said.

When they did, they found neatly packaged money, with some of the Sandy Spring bank's own paper hands wrapped around it, Nesbitt said.

Slain Youth's Parents Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police along the East Coast between Washington and Florida have been asked to find the vacationing parents of a youth who was shot to death Saturday night in a small camping trailer, unaware of the death of their son, Charles Shelley, 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Shelley of Adelphi, Md., a Washington suburb, were heading for either Sarasota or St. Petersburg, Fla., in their car, with a small camping trailer, unaware of the death of their son, Charles Shelley, 23.

The son, who lived in Palmer Park, Md., suffered a fatal bullet wound in the chest when he tried to break up an argument between two other men during a party in the apartment shared by his brother, James Shelley, 26, and Charles L. Parker, 20.

Charged with homicide in the shooting was Gerald Lee Day, 26, who, police said, was having an argument with Parker when the Shelley youth tried to intervene.

Docker Strike Ties Up Ships At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Wildcat longshoremen strikes tied up half the shipping in the port of Baltimore Tuesday as dockworkers defied the instructions of their union leaders.

The Baltimore Maritime Exchange reported that 10 dry cargo vessels were being worked, while nine others were idled because of the work stoppage. Two other inbound vessels were diverted.

Monday, the first day of the wildcat walkouts, at least one ship cleared the port without a full load of cargo.

William Haile, international director of the International Longshoremen's Association, said his only eight Negroes had hoped work would be back to normal Tuesday.

But hurriedly called meetings of two general cargo locals Monday night failed to resolve the dispute between ILA leadership and dissident members who insist on a "no contract, no work" policy.

Last week the ILA's executive council approved a four-year agreement covering the port of New York and fixing basic terms for Baltimore and other North Atlantic ports.

At the same time, the union Waterfront and 26 other books leadership agreed to a 21-day strike in satisfactory extension to a no-strike agreement Tuesday in Scripps ment to permit East Coast ILA Memorial Hospital. Miller, 65, locals to work out local terms. The union has been without a contract since September.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger Brown has been appointed assistant vice president for finance of the affiliated Chesapeake and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads.

Brown has been assistant vice president in charge of financial planning for the C&O.

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — A study of the feasibility of extending either the school day or the school year in Montgomery County has been ordered by the county Board of Education.

The action was taken by the board on a recommendation by Everett Woodward, board member, who said if a longer school year program is developed it should be on a trimester basis.

The board directed School Supt. Homer O. Elseroad to make the study.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A lone holdup man fled with $400 to $700 taken from a teller Tuesday at the Mount Vernon National Bank & Trust Co. branch at Rose Hill, south of here.

The holdup man ordered a teller to put her currency into a bag he was carrying, police said. He fled on foot.

Police described the man as white, 5 feet 9, between 21 and 25 years old, medium build, and having acne scars.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) has picketed Safeway Trailways Inc. in support of demands for more jobs for Negroes.

George A. Wiley, associate national director of CORE, says his group is urging a boycott of Safeway Trailways because the firm has only eight Negroes among its 325 bus drivers.

Marvin E. Walsh, Safeway Trailways executive vice president, says CORE wants the company to hire Negroes regardless of qualifications.

CORE picketed for several hours Monday night at Safeway Trailways, which operates between Washington, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Two Prisoners Die After Drinking Anti-Freeze

BALTIMORE (AP) — Artificially flavored anti-freeze killed two inmates at the Maryland House of Correction last week, the state commissioner of correction said Tuesday.

Vernon L. Peppersack, the commissioner, said 16 other inmates required medical treatment. Four were hospitalized briefly.

Peppersack said all 18 men drank anti-freeze taken from a 50-gallon drum at the prison's dairy farm where they were detailed last Thursday.

The mixture was flavored with a substance available in the prison commissary, he said.

The dead inmates were Charles Kretzer, 40, of Hagerstown, and Arthur Ball, 32, of Baltimore.

Kretzer, who was serving a five-month term for habitual drunkenness, died in the prison hospital 4½ hours after he reported sick last Thursday.

Ball, who was serving a 3½-year sentence for robbery, died Saturday in University Hospital after being transferred from the prison in Jessup, 12 miles south of Baltimore.

Peppersack said the 16 who lived were being kept in their cells and had not been reassigned to work details.

Dr. Charles S. Petty, assistant medical examiner, said Kretzer and Ball died of methyl alcohol poisoning.

About 800 of the prison's 1,600 inmates staged a two-hour riot last Oct. 23.

Secrets Of Charm

Lines About Liplines

You won't have to rely solely on mistletoe to invite a happy-holiday salute, if you memorize these lines on liplines.

1. Lipstick is to help you reach the ideal in mouth beauty—lips about equal in fullness, top and bottom.

2. Ideally, the corners of your mouth should mark the path also marked by the centers of your eye pupils.

3. Ideally, the bows of your mouth follow imaginary lines that run from the outer edges of your nostrils to the upper lip.

4. A lower lip that's too full is reduced by a slightly paler shade in the same tone of lipstick.

5. A thin mouth seems fuller and softer when outlined finely (with brush or pencil) in a darker tone of the lipstick used in the mid-area.

6. A mouth that's just too full assumes prettier proportions when a lighter shade is brushed or penciled just inside the ridge of the mouth.

7. Remove all trace of old lip makeup before applying the new coat.

8. Film a bit of moisturizing cream or lotion over the lips, follow with a light coat of makeup foundation.

9. Now, apply first coat of lipstick and blot with tissue.

10. Powder lightly, then apply second coat of lipstick. Allow to set for two minutes before blotting again.

11. Did you draw that lipstick all the way to each corner of your mouth? If not, please do. You'll look "happier," even when you're not wearing a smile.

12. Wear a smile, whenever possible (and even when it seems impossible).

Students, Parents Entertained

Students of Allegany Community College and their parents were entertained Sunday afternoon at a reception given by Dr. Herbert F. Marco, dean of academic affairs, in the college auditorium.

Dean Marco made a short welcoming address in which he emphasized to parents that Allegany Community College is their college and not just their children's. It is opened to the community as a whole for educational advancement and cultural development, he said, adding that education in the community today is a team effort — and that team is made up of students, faculty, and parents.

Guests were entertained by Paul J. Mallie who is the concert organist for the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra, as well as professor of mathematics at the college. His program included "Appalachian Christmas Carol," "The Shepherd's Song," "Holiday for Strings" and several new and old selections from the music of Christmas.

The college choir under the direction of Alfred J. Homburg presented a selection of carols. Members of the choir are Misses Bernadette Boyle (soloist), Linda Del Busso, Mary Ethel Knieriem, Pamela Wolfe, Bonnie Eyler, Stephanie Granigan, Nancy Kippenburg, Mrs. Vera Diggs, Roger Bruner and Jim Fatkin.

Garden Club Decorates Institutions

The bidding:

Opening lead: Jack of ♠. Altho South misread the opponents' club holdings in today's hand, he effected a last minute recovery to salvage his six heart contract.

South's hand is worth 17 points counting high cards and distribution and North is known to have at least 16 for his no trump bid. The partnership is therefore assured of the 33 required for a slam undertaking and, when South's jump response in hearts was raised, he checked back for aces. Altho one ace was missing, he decided to gamble out the club situation on the chance that either North had good clubs or sufficient side strength to provide discards.

West chose to open his singleton jack of clubs in the vague hope of obtaining a ruff. Declarer played the dummy's queen in order to retain a finessing position in either direction against the ten in the event one of his opponents held four clubs. Trumps were drawn in three rounds, as East discarded a spade on the last heart.

The moment of decision had arrived for South, and he decided to play West for a sequence in clubs headed by the jack-ten. He therefore cashed the ace, intending to finesse on the next round if East showed out. When West failed everything turned black, for it now appeared that declarer must lose a club trick as well as the ace of spades.

A moment's reflection convinced South that he still had a chance provided that East had the ace of spades. A diamond was led to North's ace and a small spade was returned. East was obliged to duck—so as not to establish both the king and queen—and South put up the king which held the trick.

Declarer now cashed his remaining hearts and the king of diamonds to produce his three card end position:

NORTH
♥ K 9
♣ 10 7

SOUTH
♠ 8 5
♥ 3
♦ A 3
♣ 10 7

South led the three of spades in order to throw East in with the ace. The latter was obliged to surrender the last two tricks to North.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this letter in the hope that it will be read by my neighbor, the mother of a two-year-old child.

The little girl weighs 60 pounds and wears size 14 pants. This summer that child, in her red striped bathing suit, looked like a beach ball with legs.

I've watched the mother feed her and the mound of potatoes on the girl's plate looks like Mt. Wilson. When she stops eating, the mother shovels in more food.

This is an unhappy youngster if I ever saw one. She cries over nothing and rarely smiles. She was a very slow walker — probably because she couldn't drag her fat bottom around.

I've hinted that the youngster should be taken to a doctor for a check-up but the mother laughs and says, "Lord love her, she is just chubby."

Will you comment, please?

DEAR CONCERNED: In the old days a fat child was thought to be a healthy child. We know now that this is not necessarily true.

Every child fat or thin, should be taken to a pediatrician for a check-up annually. Routine check-ups have turned up diabetes, rheumatic heart disease and other illnesses which, when diagnosed early, are far less dangerous.

DEAR ANN LANDEDES: Our 17-year-old son, Jack, is a poor student because he refuses to apply himself. He is one year behind in school but it doesn't bother him.

Lucy, the girl with whom Jack has been going steady for over a year, is also a poor student. To listen to her talk you'd think she was in the sixth grade although she is a high school senior.

My husband and I were praying that these two would break up before they got into trouble. Well, three weeks ago when Lucy thought she was pregnant Jack told us what had been going on. When it turned out she was not pregnant we thought the scare would teach them a lesson, but it didn't. They are still together every evening.

Lucy's parents are brainless. They give her the family car when we won't give Jack our car. They give him money and invite him on trips. He doesn't even ask us, he just goes. These people are making a bum out of our son and we don't know what to do about it. Can you help?

—G. H. I.
DEAR G. H. I.: Why blame Lucy's parents for making a bum out of your son? They didn't raise him. You did. Jack has been intimidating you and getting his own way for years. Now you must seek outside help. The first step is to get counseling for yourselves. Your counselor will take it from there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't believe it. I just can't believe it. Not YOU, Ann Landers!

When Kansas Grandpaw wrote and complained because his wife had a habit of appearing at the breakfast table wearing a housecoat over her nightgown—and asked if you approved it—you said, "I not only approve it, I DO it."

What does your husband think about having such a lazy wife?

—MR. DAWN-BUSTER

DEAR BUSTER: Yup, it's true. Li'l Ol' me at the breakfast table in a housecoat over my nightgown. I asked my husband what he thought about it 25 years ago and he said, "Why should I object if you wear a housecoat over a nightgown when I'm sitting here in a bathrobe over my pajamas?"

P.S. 365 columns a year. This is lazy?

ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," gives sound and solid rules for teenage dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

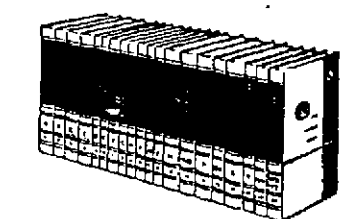

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Congo Rebels Joined Massacre Survivors In Christmas Carols

By DIETRICH MUMMENDEY

United Press International

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo

(UPI)—When the massacre of white missionaries and priests

was over, the rebels sang

Christmas carols in the steaming jungle with the survivors.

They had just taken 14 missionaries and priests to the edge of the river at Baufwasende and shot them to death.

And then they met with 27 others they had locked for three days in a single room and sang

the carols with them—in English, Italian and the native

Swahili.

This weird story—the rotting bodies, the filthy one-room prison, Christmas carols, a mixture of superstition and discussions

about God—emerged Monday

from the tales told by three women who survived the threat-

some friendly jokes, even sang

of death in the rebel-held Congo.

Miss Louis Rimmer, 66, and Miss Olive McCarten, 30, both of London, and Mrs. Dolina

Burk, of Calgary, Alberta, arrived here with 11 Italian nuns aboard a U.S. Air Force trans-

hind the body of her husband,

Chester, who was killed in the Baufwasende massacre.

For three days, Miss Rimmer

said, the 11 nuns, seven priests and nine Canadian and British missionaries were kept in the one room.

"We were like animals in a zoo, all windows open and the simbas and children taking turns staring at us, pouring dirty curses over us and threatening us," Mrs. Burk said.

"But later, after the killings

it was better again," she said.

"It's strange. They even made

some friendly jokes, even sang

Christmas carols with us. We sang in English, the nuns in Italian and the simbas (rebels)

challenged us again and said,

"There is no God. And we said,

"There is only joking. I know there of course there is. And after that we prayed for yourself and pray for us." "

"We discussed God and once a simba challenged a nun, 'you believe in God?' when she said

yes, he hit her over the head."

German Generals Agree Allied Demand Mistake

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—German wartime commanders agreed Monday with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's opinion that the Allied demand for German's unconditional surrender in World War II was a mistake.

"Certainly, it was a mistake," Gen. Adolf Heusinger commented on Eisenhower's remarks, made in a Washington Post interview. "It prolonged the resistance," Heusinger said. "Joseph Goebbels and his propagandists made use of this demand to tell the people they had no choice but to keep fighting to the end."

"Of course, I had no more contact with the troops after my discharge following the July 20 events. But I am convinced that German resistance increased because of this Allied demand."

Heusinger, fired in a purge after the abortive plot on Adolf Hitler's life July 20, 1944, had been head of the army's operational division. After the war he was commander of the Bundeswehr—the German army—and, until early this year, head of the Atlantic alliance's permanent military committee in Washington.

Gen. Hans Speidel said he contended in a biographical book, first published in 1949, that the demand for unconditional surrender was a grave mistake.

"I have discussed this at length with Gen. Eisenhower," he said. "I would not make any further comment on the matter because it is now a political issue."

Speidel was chief of staff to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel during the Allied invasion in 1944 and was arrested after the July 20 plot. After the war, he became the first four-star general of the German Bundeswehr.

Speidel and Heusinger made their comments in telephone interviews.

Pennsylvanian Found Guilty On Odd Charge

A Pennsylvania man Monday was found guilty of an unusual criminal charge in Trial Magistrate Court at a hearing conducted before Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt.

Ronald Fisher, Schellsburg, was found guilty of failing to pay the wages of several of his employees who were engaged in the home improvement business.

Huey Powell, Merle G. Jewell, and Huey Powell Jr. charged that Fisher owed them a total of $209.58 for work they performed this past summer.

Magistrate Weatherholt fined Fisher $50 on each of the three counts, but suspended the fines on condition Fisher make restitution by January 1.

The court said Fisher also faces possible action for operating a home improvement business without a Maryland license.

Ordinance Is Adopted

Included in the front foot assessment will be upon all properties, improved or unimproved, binding on a street, lane, alley or right-of-way in which a sanitary sewer has been built, laid, purchased, acquired or improved in the sanitary district.

The front foot assessment will be 30 cents per foot for all four classifications of land, agricultural, small acreage, commercial or industrial, subdivision or residential.

The annual assessment charge will commence as of January 1, 1965 and annually each year thereafter and shall be due and payable at the office of the Allegany County Sanitary Commission and shall be due and payable within 60 days from January 1.

After the 60-day period all unpaid assessment will bear interest at the rate of one-half per cent per month.

Senator's Son Gets Citation

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—A Red Cross life saving certificate was presented Tuesday to the son of a State Senator who rescued a young Negro boy from drowning here last summer.

The award was presented to Clarence E. Martin III, son of State Sen. and Mrs. Clarence E. Martin by Martinsburg Mayor James B. Hutzler in a ceremony in the mayor's office. The citation said young Martin, a University of Arizona freshman, was playing golf with his father at the Martinsburg Golf Club Aug. 15 when he was attracted by a commotion at the swimming pool.

Upon investigating, he saw a young child lying at the bottom of the pool in six feet of water and Martin immediately fished him out and gave him artificial respiration.

A doctor present at the scene said young Martin's actions saved the child's life. The boy apparently had slipped into the country club grounds and fell into the pool.

Phone Company Granted Small Rate Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $2,196,000 annual rate increase was granted Tuesday to the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The increase authorized by the District Public Service Commission is only about one fifth of what the company asked, and residential rates will go up relatively little, if at all.

The commission ruled that the company's rate of return should remain at 6.25 per cent, the same figure set 10 years ago.

The company had asked for an annual increase of $10.5 million, which it said would give a return of 8.06 per cent.

How to be smarter than your wife (on the subject of Savings Bonds)

Of course, there's no question about who's smarter at your house on most subjects. But to remove any doubt as to who knows more about U. S. Savings Bonds, the Treasury Department presents this little quiz. You take it first so you'll know all the answers and then pop it on your spouse. Great for the morale.

1. A Series E Savings Bond reaches maturity in:
☐ 5 years ☐ 7½ years ☐ 10 years
2. The money you earn from Savings Bonds is exempt from state and local income taxes.
☐ true ☐ false
3. You have to be an American to buy U. S. Savings Bonds.
☐ true ☐ false
4. Americans owned more Savings Bonds in:
☐ 1943 ☐ 1953 ☐ 1963
5. Uncle Sam will give you a new Bond free if:
☐ You accidentally toss it in the washing machine
☐ The neighbor's dog swallows it whole
☐ A thief steals it
6. It's hard to redeem a Savings Bond.
☐ true ☐ false
7. A Bond that costs $18.75 will:
☐ Grow to $25 and stop
☐ Keep on growing if you don't cash it in
8. If you have a large Bond, you can cash in just part of it.
☐ true ☐ false
9. The 20,000 banks and other issuing agents which sell Savings Bonds don't charge Bond buyers a penny for the service.
☐ true ☐ false
10. You can have somebody else buy your Bonds for you.
☐ true ☐ false

ANSWERS

1. 7½ years is correct.
2. True. What's more, federal tax on E Bond interest may be deferred until the Bond is redeemed.
3. Generally speaking, true. You must be either a resident; a citizen living abroad; or an employee of the U.S., military or civilian.
4. In spite of the fact that Bond-buying was nearly universal during the war years, the correct answer is 1963.
5. You're right no matter which answer you checked.
6. False. Any bank will redeem your E Bond anytime after the two-months' holding period.
7. A Series E Bond will keep growing for 10 years past maturity. Extension is automatic.
8. True. If you had a $100 Bond, for instance, you could get cash for ¼ its current value, and have smaller Bonds issued for the balance.
9. True. Banks and other financial institutions offer this valuable service free.

DON'T YOU READ BEFORE YOU BUY?

Where but in print can you get so close to the advertising messages that interest you? Where else can a woman clip the coupons and recipes that intrigue her? Or tear out tips to try on leftovers? Or mark, for future marketing, any of the colorful food ideas which strike her fancy? And where else can she circle and compare the colors and styles of clothing and furnishings that appeal to her?

Where else, in fact, can any message be re-run at will by an interested audience? So make sure a good part of your advertising message gets into print. Let somebody's eyes linger over it as long as they like. Let somebody's scissors clip it free of competition. And then watch someone's pocket or purse carry it to the place of purchase. Print makes sense because print makes sales.

Kenton would prefer that the orchestra not be wholly identi- fied as a jazz aggregation. "It isn't altogether jazz either," he said. "I think it was Duke (Ellington) who said that we ought to get rid of the word jazz. We've always had trouble with it. You say, 'look at that jazzy car, that jazzy necktie.'"

The orchestra is the latest stage in the evolution of jazz, which began in the streets and saloons of New Orleans in the last century and is now being played on concert stages. Kenton and his group will perform in a series of four con- certs at the new Los Angeles Music Center.

Pianist Kenton always has been among the progressive musicians in the jazz field. His band of the early 1940s was one of the groups which sought to establish contemporary music in day.

"There's a need for it," said Kenton recently during a dis- cussion of the 27-man orchestra. "I played and then got up and place in the game room located behind his Beverly Hills home, the 45-year-old Kenton spoke of the history of jazz and its place in a modern society.

Most of the younger guys went to universities and conservatories and even studied the clas- sic and theories of music. They applied them to the field of American music which is jazz."

"So you might say that neo- phonic music is the music these guys now create."

LaSalle Grads Give Talks On Colleges

LaSalle High School Monday held its fourth annual college dis- cussion program, under the direc- tion of Brother Richard and Jerry Moore, editor of the school pa- per, "The Torch."

Graduates attending the session were William Lueck, University of Maryland; Larry Grabenstein, LaSalle College; Michael Sawyers, West Virginia University; Gregg Skidmore, Rutgers University; Robert Neubeiser, Mt. St. Mary's College, and Joseph Nolan, Steu- benville College.

Grabenstein is currently ma- joring in biology. Both Graben- stein and Skidmore are on full scholarships, while Lueck is on a partial scholarship at Mary- land.

Brother Richard said the pur- pose of the discussion is to en- lighten future LaSalle graduates on the problems of campus life. By discussing problems that they encounter, the graduates hope to better prepare current seniors for college life, Brother Richard said.

Each graduate presented his personal perspectives on problems of college life, and how he over- came these. They also answered questions ranging from "How did you finance college?" to "What did you do with your laundry during the first week?"

The cross-section of topics also included the comparison of life in a small Catholic college, such as Steubenville, to life in a large public university, such as the University of Maryland.

Brother Richard said the dis- cussion does not aim at persuad- ing prospective college freshmen to enter a certain college, but rather to help them to adjust to the college that they enter.

Post Office Will Observe Long Holiday

For the first time in the history of the Post Office Department, a three-day holiday is permitted most postal employees in the nation, Postmaster William B. Orndorff announced.

The holiday schedule will be observed Saturday when the Cum- berland office and its branches also will be closed. Thus, he said, most employees will get Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the hol- iday weekend.

However, the postmaster as- sured, distribution of mail to post- office lock boxes at the main office and all stations will be made as usual. Normal dispatches of mail will be made on both days and special delivery mail and gift parcels will be delivered promptly.

Regular holiday collection of mail from street-letter boxes will be in effect Friday and Saturday. No deliveries will be made by city carriers, but rural delivery services will be given as usual, Mr. Orndorff said.

Mr. Orndorff stated that the long weekend is most welcome to postal employees after a gruelling holiday mailing season. The fact that the office has successfully met the challenge was made pos- sible by the cooperation of the public in the "Shop and Mail Early" campaign.

Safety Record Broken By Paper Mill Workers

Employees of the Luke Mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, who Monday passed a million man-hours without a dis- abling injury or lost-time accident, had their streak broken just hours after the record had been set.

Late Monday afternoon, 12 same record performance three hours after the new mark had been established, 26-year-old Ken- neth Peck had his left thumb am- putated and two other fingers in- jured in a mishap.

Mr. Peck, who resides at 415 Oak Street, Oakland, had his hand caught beneath a 400-pound roll of paper in the Langston rewinding section of No. 8 and 9 paper machines.

A company spokesman said a pile of paper rolls was being moved by a crane when the load shifted, severing the man's thumb. He was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital.

The safety record was set Mon- day morning. During the 60 days from October 13 to Decem- ber 12, 2,400 Luke employees had worked without an injury.

The new record follows closely a recent announcement that the Luke Mill had taken top place in a company-wide safety com- petition for the best safety per- formance during the fiscal year ending on October 31.

The Luke employees won a $500 cash award for this company- wide record and immediately do- nated $250 each to the Allegheny-Garrett Heart Association and the Allegheny County Cancer Society.

The mill's record in 1964 was 2.6 lost time accidents for every million hours worked.

Huge Water Leak Found In Survey At Westernport

WESTERNPORT — The recent pitometer check for loss of water in Westernport detected a leak on Mary and Avenue which accounted for approximately 200,000 gallons daily.

A serious leak was indicated some time ago when the reservoir and storage tank remained normal and the amount of water being filtered was more than normal usage. Pitometer Associates, New York, was retained for the project.

Town officials Monday evening agreed that all necessary materials are now on hand for the repair work which is to start at 9 a. m. Saturday morning.

Ernest Wilson, Cumberland, was engaged to repair the leak. Water will be turned off for a short period in that area.

James Fort, representative of the Pitometer firm, supervised the work of making the water check and cleaning out intakes where needed. All fire hydrants have been checked and found to be in good order.

A complaint was received relative to the dangerous and unsightly condition of a former gas station structure on Main Street. The owner, Robert Reese, will be notified to have the building repaired or razed.

The insurance policies on all municipal property were reviewed. The officials decided it would be more feasible to insure the combined assets in a package policy. Commissioner Alvin Pence will outline the insurance needs to present at the next council meeting on January 4. The council will then advertise for fleet insurance bids on motor vehicles and fire and liability insurance on all other equipment and property.

The Cadette Girl Scout Troop 112, of which Margaret Shaw is leader, sent a thank-you note to the Mayor and Commissioners and the Christmas decorations committee chairman William Brown, thanking them for injecting the "Yule Spirit" into the town with the beautiful street decorations.

Some Days It Don't Pay To Get Up

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI)—Christmas week just didn't start off right for one Wheeling area housewife.

Mrs. Virginia McKain first learned Monday that her husband will not get home from his Navy station in Alaska as expected.

When she took the family car downtown to do some shopping later in the day, she hit a second auto in the rear.

And as if that weren't enough, she lost the keys to the car at a time when she needed them quickly to keep from having the vehicle towed from a restricted zone.

Men accompanying a wrecker then pushed her car to a metered parking zone. She put her packages in the car while she telephoned the babysitter to bring a spare set of keys. When she got back to the car, someone had stolen one package containing a $40 record player.

Bishop Walsh Again Will Spend Christmas In China

Four Americans, one of them a brother departed from the Shanghai jail in 1960, the Maryknoll Missionary's last words were "We will meet in heaven."

All four Americans have been jailed on vague charges of espionage. Three of the four have been given little hope of ever spending Christmas in their homes again.

All attempts by the U.S. government and relatives to obtain their release have so far been rejected by the Chinese.

This will mark the 14th Christmas in a Chinese prison for Hugh F. Redmond Jr., 45, Yonkers, N. Y., a former businessman in China, who is serving a life term.

One May See Home

For John T. Downey, 34, of New Britain, Conn., and Richard Fecteau, 37, of Lynn, Mass., former Army civilian employees, it will be the 13th Christmas behind bars. Downey is serving a life term and Fecteau a 20-year sentence. With only seven years left, Fecteau is the only one likely to see the United States again unless Peking has a change in heart.

Bishop Walsh alternates monthly letters to his brother and sister here, and they in turn send duplicated copies to members of the family.

The latest letter received here was to his brother and in it comments on an article by J. William Hunt that was based on the life of the Bishop's grandfather, William Walsh, former local attorney and Congressman.

He also stated:

"I may say that my health is keeping up very well, as usual."

Members of the family note that the Bishop always refers to his health, monthly informing them that he is well.

They also observe that the Bishop's handwriting remains very strong, another indication of his health.

The Hong Kong dispatch by AP said there have been recent reports that the bishop is ailing, but members of the family discredit it through his communication with them.

The new co-instructional high school scheduled for Cumberland has been named Bishop James E. Walsh High School in honor of the local missionary.

The planet with a surface temperature closest to Earth's 59°F is Mars.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Hong Kong, their families were allowed to include the puddings in regular monthly packages from home. The packages, shipped through the Red Cross, also include cigarettes, vitamin pills and letters.

In jail since March 1960 in Shanghai has been the Most Rev. James E. Walsh of Cumberland, who was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment for "espionage."

The Bishop, who writes regularly to his brother, William C. Walsh, local attorney, and his sister, Miss Mary Walsh, is in the hospital section of the Shanghai prison.

Not because of illness, but because of his age, he told his brother, William, when he visited him in the Chinese Communist prison in 1960.

The Bishop, 73, has no illusion about his fate. When his

Keyser Man Gets Suspended Jail Sentence

Associate Judge Harold E. Naughton yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court gave a Keyser man a suspended four-year term in the Maryland penitentiary when he entered pleas of guilty to stealing brass journal bearings from B&O and Western Maryland Railway cars last May and June.

The man, Herman Gilbert Westfall, was arrested several weeks ago.

In suspending the four-year term Judge Naughton ordered Westfall to make restitution of $300 within one year and $425 within two years for the expenses incurred by the railroads when seven of their boxcars were moved after the brass journal bearings had been removed. It cost the railroads $725 to reground the wheels damaged when moved without the bearings.

J. Frederik Sharer, the court-appointed attorney for Westfall, informed the court that the man had no previous criminal record. He had enlisted in the Army and served as a tank driver in Korea and received a medical discharge in 1955.

He spent one year as a patient at Baker VA Center at Martinsburg and underwent three operations. He had been employed as a painter in Baltimore until his arrest. His employer will rehire him if the court places him on probation, Mr. Sharer informed Judge Naughton.

Refusal To Help Unlawful In France

A magistrate in Nice, France, has jailed seven people under circumstances that might suggest a course of action in this country, in light of several shocking cases where bystanders refused to help persons injured or attacked.

A 17-year-old French factory worker was knifed in a brawl and later died. After an investigation, the examining magistrate arrested a doctor who refused to come to the scene, as well as six bystanders who failed to give assistance to the dying man.

This action was taken under French law which provides criminal penalties against a person "voluntarily abstaining from giving assistance to a person in danger that, without risk for himself and others, he could have given either by personal action or by calling for help."

Although some of the facts in the French case are in dispute — and will eventually be decided by court trial — the principle is sound. Had, for instance, such a law been in effect in New York, it would have had a direct bearing on the 38 people who watched and heard the three knife attacks on Catherine Genovese last March, but never heeded her screams—even to the extent of picking up a telephone and calling the police.

As a matter of fact, there are provisions of American law which act against the Good Samaritan, especially if he is a member of the medical profession. A U.S. doctor can find himself in jeopardy of a malpractice suit if, in an effort to save an injured person, he stops at the scene of an accident to give aid. Under legal principles in many states, he must have the consent of the injured person before trying to save his life.

It is easy to blame the individual in cases where refusal to help is flagrant. But, at the same time, the law ought to protect those who discharge their human responsibilities.

Afro-Asians Overreach

If some of the African states in the UN aren't careful, they will succeed in turning President Lyndon Johnson into a flaming conservative in foreign policy issues.

The latest idiosyncrasy manifested by the "get the United States" group in the UN is to be found in a recent report of a subcommittee of the Special Committee on Colonialism that flails away at the alleged sins of certain American mining companies with concessions in Southwest Africa. These companies are accused of supporting apartheid policies in that part of the world, and of grinding the faces of the natives to make a profit. The crowning insult is the Committee on Colonialism's call on the American government to put an end to its support of the Republic of South Africa, which has run Southwest Africa ever since it took over that old German colony as a post-World War I League of Nations mandated territory.

The subcommittee's report was actually drafted by the Soviet Union's UN delegation. What it strikes at are the operations of international companies which, as a condition of getting concessions to dredge for diamonds in the coastal waters of Southwest Africa or to drill for oil, are of necessity compelled to observe the labor laws imposed by the South African government. These labor laws insist on uniform recruitment policies, and impose a strict control of immigration from Angola and other places outside Southwest African territory. There are legal restrictions on the advancement of colored workers to more highly paid positions, and these, in effect, keep Negro laborers from becoming skilled workers.

The American companies that have evoked the displeasure of the Soviet-dominated subcommittee include the American Metal Climax Company, the Newmont Mining Corporation, the Tsumeb Corporation, the Elosha Petroleum Company (a subsidiary of the Texas Eastern Transmission Company), the Artrell Exploration Company, and the Marine Diamond Corporation (which is run by Samuel Collins, an American oil man). What burns some of these companies up is that they themselves don't agree with the South African government's insistence that apartheid, or "separateness," be applied in the training of workers. Harry Oppenheimer, the chairman of the Anglo-American Corporation, a British concern, has actually pointed out that low productivity resulting from segregated labor is undesirable for effective industrialization.

Mr. Oppenheimer has said that "attempts to remedy this situation are, of course, made more difficult by the legislative color bars which are imposed on industry in South Africa." The Oppenheimer statement has been endorsed by the management of the U.S.-owned American Metal Climax Company in a company report that says: "It is to be hoped that the governmental authorities will now be prepared to sponsor or permit substantial modernization of the standards and conditions of employment and life of the African workers in the territory."

This sort of thing clearly ranges U.S. companies on the side of their own government in Washington, which does not support the Republic of South Africa on the issue of apartheid. As for the charge that the American companies grind the faces of the poor in order to extract a profit from Southwest African operations, this is belied by the fact that three-quarters of the local income taxes come from mining, fishing, and other companies.

The attempt to stigmatize the U.S. government and the American companies in Southwest Africa as supporters of apartheid is only to be understood in the light of the Afro-Asian drive in the UN to booby-trap the whole American world position. The ironic thing about this is that it has evoked the ire of the U.S. Representative on the Special Committee on Colonialism, Ambassador Marietta P. Tree. Mrs. Tree has always been a liberal; her brother happens to be Endicott Peabody, the Democratic ex-governor of Massachusetts, and it was her mother who was arrested not so long ago in St. Augustine for protesting against segregation in Florida. In her own statement on the report of the subcommittee Mrs. Tree said: "Its conclusions constitute... undisguised propaganda attacks on the United States."

If the Afro-Asian bloc has outraged Mrs. Tree, think of what it is doing to make President Lyndon Johnson smoulder.

Inadequacy Of Electoral System Needs Study

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The official tabulation of the votes of the American people for President and Vice President in the election last month has now been recorded, and the individuals designated as members of the Electoral College have met and cast their ballots. But, as usual, scant attention is being paid to the unrepresentative method of choosing the electors and the inadequacy of the formula itself.

While Mr. Johnson received 486 electoral votes by getting a majority in 44 out of the 50 states and in the District of Columbia, there is nothing in the electoral system of the United States which would prevent a nominee from being elected President unanimously in the electoral college even though he had been given a popular majority of only one vote in each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. He would nevertheless be entitled to all of the 538 electoral votes.

It is also possible for the winning candidate to receive a majority of the electoral votes while the defeated candidate got a popular majority. This is because of the system which requires all of the electoral votes of each state to be counted as a unit for the candidate getting a majority in that state.

In the 1960 election, for example, out of all the votes cast in the United States, the late John F. Kennedy received only 118,550 votes more than were given to Richard Nixon. The rest of the nearly 69 million ballots were evenly divided between the two major candidates or went to minor party nominees. Mr. Kennedy, while getting less than 50 per cent of the popular vote, received 303 of the 538 electoral votes. Proposals to permit one electoral vote for each congressional district have been offered in Congress from time to time, but to no avail.

Surprisingly enough, though the total vote in the recent election was the highest in the country's history, a smaller percentage of persons of voting age cast ballots for the Presidency in 1964 than voted in 1960.

But, although the term "landslide" has been used widely and, in a general sense, accurately, the fact remains that it would not have taken a huge proportion of the total vote to have changed the final result.

Thus, while the popular majority for Mr. Johnson was 15,952,341 votes, this really means that if eight million voters had recorded themselves the other way, Mr. Goldwater would have won by a narrow margin. This number — eight million — is less than 12 per cent of the total vote cast for the Republican and Democratic Presidential nominees.

To put it another way, approximately eight million out of 70,683,659 voters swung the election. Many of them, of course, crossed over to the Democratic Party from the Republican Party, and it will never be known how extensive this defection really was. There were also Democrats who crossed over to the Republican side, but the general belief among politicians is that the largest defection was in the Republican Party.

It may come as a surprise to many people to read that eight million citizens—or a little more than seven per cent of the 114 million who are of voting age—decided the election. It is perhaps impossible or difficult for 'SECOND HOME' — Usually ambassadors assigned to Washington find they must spend the first months in the city familiarizing themselves with the many facets of their new official and personal lives. Not so for the new ambassador from South Korea, Hyun Chul Kim.

Kim, now 63 years old, has spent most of his life in the United States and a large part of it in Washington or its vicinity. He graduated from Lynchburg College, Columbia and American Universities, was a news correspondent in New York, conducted a business in Washington, and even served a period as a U. S. government employee.

However, that doesn't mean he is a stranger to his own country. He served as prime minister of South Korea in 1962 and 1963.

Among other attributes, he is completely familiar with the English language and comports himself more as an American than as a representative of a little country half way around the world.

Statistics On Holiday Drinking And Driving

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

and one-quarter of all riders of motorcycles or bicycles.

In addition, alcohol played a role in 48 per cent of the accidents and in nearly three-quarters of the single vehicle, non-pedestrian injuries. A somewhat similar study was done in Illinois during a previous season and 57 per cent of the traffic fatalities involved someone who had been drinking.

The road research laboratory had no way of determining how many people who had indulged were not involved in accidents and, in this respect, a statistical study of this type is incomplete. Several years ago the police stopped every motorist entering Evanston, Ill., on a Saturday evening and asked whether they had been drinking. A high percentage admitted to one or more cocktails. We assume that the same situation exists elsewhere and that the majority of drinkers get home safely.

"Happy driving" also entered the picture. A few drinks at a party may be worse than enough to make a person too inebriated to drive. Even an expert may fumble at the wheel when his judgment and usual caution are dissolved by two or three martinis.

There is no such thing as safety in numbers when it comes to holiday motoring. Imagine what a busy highway is like when four out of five drivers have been swigging at a Christmas party. There is a general tendency to drive too fast.

Many People Contribute To Project Of Sending Turkeys To Mississippi

By Drew Pearson

In Birmingham, who wrote on Dec. 11, "Thank you for thinking about us in this matter. May God bless you! Yours for others."

In five cities, however, Natchez, McComb, Vicksburg, Meridian, and Columbus, local leaders of the Salvation Army refused to distribute turkeys despite an order from the U. S. commander of the Salvation Army, Holland French, in New York.

This caused some to remark that Christ's love stops at the border of Mississippi.

Love In Mississippi

Last night, however, I got a phone call from W. G. Sims of the AFL-CIO central labor union in Columbus, Miss.

"I understand that the Salvation Army has pulled out on you and won't distribute turkeys," said Mr. Sims.

I replied that unfortunately this was true.

"Well, Marvin Taylor of Local 397 of the Carpenters Local and I will distribute turkeys and get 'em to all races," volunteered Mr. Sims.

"I've got an abdominal cavity full of this hate business," he continued. "We want to do something in the Christmas spirit, something for folks from whom you don't get anything in return."

Obviously Christ has not stopped at the border of Mississippi.

It was the hope of Dick Gregory and those who conceived the idea of sending turkeys to Mississippi that it would help bring cooperation between different faiths and different races. Most of the white Protestant churches have stood on the sidelines, but here are some of the churchmen who have not:

Father Nathaniel of the St. Francis Mission in Greenwood, various Catholic fathers of the St. Theresa Catholic Church in Gulfport, Father Kennedy, an Episcopalian, Abe Silver of Beth Israel Temple, and Abe Herman of B'nai B'rith, Rev. Argood, Baptist head of the Back Bay Mission, all of Gulfport; together with the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Gulfport.

In Hattiesburg turkeys are being distributed by Rabbi David Benami; Father Kersten of the Holy Rosary Church, with Rev. John Cameron, a Negro Baptist, and Rev. Robert Beach, white Presbyterian.

In Jackson, Father Bernard Law is distributing turkeys, together with Charles Evers of NAACP; in Meridian, Father Nathaniel is coming over from Greenwood to help; in Natchez, Father William Morrissey; in Philadelphia, Father Conisus Hayes, and Rev. Bender, a Menominee; in Passcagoula, Father Raphael Maggiora; in Pas, Christian Father J. McCloone; and in Clarksdale, Dr. Aaron Henry, state president of NAACP.

The First Christmas

Part One

By Jim Bishop

(This is a special story for Christmas. It is the result of three pilgrimages and considerable research in the Holy Land, from which two best sellers were written: The Day Christ Died, and The Day Christ Was Born.)

The tall hills caught the first light, pink and yellow. The smaller plateaus inside the town of Nazareth were still veiled in darkness. Joseph the Carpenter lifted his bride up on the donkey. He was tender and embarrassed because she would soon become a mother. She sat sideways on the old blanket, and pulled her white veil forward against the chill of the night breeze.

On long journeys, the Jews always got an early start. They traveled as far as possible as long as the light held true, and they bedded in the fields at dusk, and ate grains and fruits before the first rays of dawn so that they could be off early. Joseph was almost ready to start. He excused himself, almost too politely for a husband, and went back into the shop for a final look.

He was nineteen years old, although the serious face under the heavy brown beard appeared to be ageless. At thirteen he had been accepted at Bar Mitzvah as a man-Jew, subject to the strictest rules of his faith. At the same time, he had been apprenticed as a carpenter. For five years he had worked with adze and mallet and chisel to fashion wood in a country which was almost barren of trees. Except for cedars, even the Roman Legions could not find enough wood to keep them warm beside their tents in the valley. A Galilean carpenter had dignity and poverty.

Last year, Joseph completed his apprenticeship and he bought a small piece of land at the top of a rise of ground in Nazareth. This was shrewd because the tradesmen and shepherds lived in caves reamed out of the soil. Underneath there was a soft limestone, no harder than gristle, and Joseph had carved his little shop out of the rise of ground, knowing that the spring and autumn rains would roll down the steep road, not into his shop. Under the workroom he carved a rude stairway and a round limestone room about eleven feet in diameter. Here he would live with his bride, called Miriam in his language and Mary in others.

The sun was still timid on the tall hills when he came out, took the rope halter in his hand and started off down the path. He told his bride that they would fill the goat skins with water when they reached the main well at the bottom, where the road to the Greek town of Sepphoris cleaves from the road south to Jerusalem.

Mary said nothing. The older women had counseled her that it is good for a woman to say little. When she did speak, like most Jews, she spoke in Aramaic, the tongue of the land of Judea. Only the learned men, the Rabbis and the High Priests spoke in Hebrew. She listened to the sharp clip of the donkey's dainty hooves on the rocky road, and she heard the soft slapping sound of Joseph's sandals.

She felt it at ease. Beneath her heart, her baby stirred and she knew that it was not good to make a long journey at this time. She fretted in silence because to complain would cause Joseph to worry. Besides, the journey had to be made. The best she could do was to pray that God would keep the baby quiet until they reached the town of Joseph's forebears—Bethlehem.

They stopped at the big spring at the bottom of the hill and daylight was seeping into open doorways, lighting the brown eyes of Jewish women who carried water jugs on their heads, hips swaying under the motionless and expressionless faces. Some glanced at her, and then looked again. She was pregnant, they reasoned, and this must be her first born because she appeared to be about fifteen years of age.

Most young ladies were betrothed at the age of thirteen, married at fourteen and had their first by the age of fifteen. This one had the sweet sad face of a child. Her eyes were brown, her hair dark and long, the garments cut full. The pointed veil had been lifted up to cover part of her face, but what the women saw at the well was a shy innocence which excited their sympathy. However, the women of the land never addressed strangers, so their offers of assistance remained on the surface of their eyes.

Joseph filled the skins and yoked them over the donkey's withers. When he started off, southward, the bags bumped against Mary's legs. It was not a pleasant journey. The roads were narrow and rocky, and in the winter solstice, the days were short and chilly and the winds slid down the slopes of the mountains of Perea and across the muddy Jordan River, lifting sand and small stones and causing the pilgrims to hold their heads low and the cows over their faces.

Sometimes, when the little family met camel caravans bound north, they had to get off the road. At other times, they met Jews from Naim and Sichar and other towns traveling in the same direction, and for an hour or two, the journey became bearable. The Jews taught orally, rather than by the written word, and the teachings were so meticulous that it was said not a word had been altered or omitted from before the time of Moses until now, and Mary knew that one of the lessons was that a woman with few complaints is akin to a rare jewel.

The nights were long and the wind died early and the cold came down from starry night sky and embraced the sleeping travelers. Joseph helped Mary to wrap tight in a heavy blanket, and he asked gentle questions about her health after the evening meal. She smiled up out of the blanket and assured him that all was well, that he should take care of the donkey.

There was some grain for the animal. Not much, but the donkey was no taller than a twelve-year-old boy, and he had worked with Joseph for such a long period that he could be permitted to be loose, and he would browse among the rocks on the night hillside for sparse blades of grass and weeds. In the morning, even in the darkness, Joseph would whistle softly and, some distance off, the slender furry ears would rise, and the donkey would think about it sleepily, then walk slowly toward his master.

The journey from Nazareth down the Jordan Valley to Jerusalem and Bethlehem is about one hundred miles. It required a week and, on the long cold nights, when the bones were numb and sleep was a stranger, the young couple had time to think about the baby. The newborn was seldom mentioned because the mystery of the birth was almost beyond their comprehension, but in thought Mary and Joseph could recount the strange and wonderful events step by step without ever understanding all of it.

Tall Twosome Share 48 Points For Campers

Alco Scores 18th Consecutive Win Over 2-Year Span

Steve Vandenberg and Dave Toey are proving to be a gruesome twosome for area basketball opponents of Allegany this year. Last night was no exception as the tall and talented pair led the Campers to their fourth win of the season—and eighteenth straight over a two-year span—by an 81-59 score at Keyser.

Vandenberg, who has drawn considerable All-America high school notice, led Chet Payne's undefeated five with 27 points, while Toey added 21. Vandy, at 6'7", and Dave, at 6'8", also led the Campers to backboard domination which saw Alco get 48 rebounds to Keyser's 28.

Joe Burnside continued his high-scoring ways with 22 for the Keyser outfit, but that was not nearly enough to counterbalance Allegany's one-two punch.

The game was never in doubt as Alco led 17-9 after the first quarter and by 46-30 at intermission. Keyser found itself on the short end of a 63-43 lead at the end of three quarters.

Allegany had a 35-24 edge in the field goal department. Both teams converted eleven foul shots, Alco's coming on 23 attempts and Keyser's on 18 attempts.

Wilson of Keyser was the only player from either team to foul out of the contest, although three other Keyser players wound up with four personals, and Toey and Killer did the same for the Campers.

Keyser's season record now reads 4-2.

Joey Giardello Shuns New York

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—Midweight boxing champion Joey Giardello said Tuesday he would not even consider a defense of his title in New York. Giardello, here to receive an honorary boxer's license citation from Gov. Richard J. Hughes, said New York had "bypassed" him for years because of his alleged underworld associations even after he rid himself of his former manager, he acknowledged. New York has been after him to fight in the state ever since he won his title. "I want the next fight either in New Jersey or Pennsylvania," the boxer said.

LONDON (UPI)—Dick Wiperman, a 24-year-old heavy-weight boxer from Buffalo, N.Y., will meet Henry Cooper, British and Empire heavy-weight champion, in a 10-round bout here Jan. 12, it was announced Monday.

The bout will be staged at the Royal Albert Hall.

Campbell's Record Try Is Thwarted By Ducks

"Millions" Create Problem, Bluebird Boat Goes 150 MPH

PERTH (UPI)—Donald Campbell made his first high speed run on Lake Dumbyleyung in his hydroplane boat Bluebird, Tuesday and came away muttering about "millions" of ducks.

"We need a duck expert," said the British speed demon after reaching a speed of 150 miles per hour in his initial run.

"The problem is really critical. The ducks could be sucked into the intakes, causing the hydroplane to lose its engine. If one hits the cockpit canopy, I'm going to get one heck of a headache."

During Bluebird's trial run, Campbell was clearly heard over the two-way radio hookup with his headquarters ashore saying: "There are ducks all over the place. There are millions of them. We have no James Bond to put machine guns in the floats."

Local observers claimed Campbell couldn't have picked a worse time for his trial runs. The hunting season opened last Sunday and the ducks settled on the lake after being driven there for refuge from other lakes in the area.

LaSalle Nips Valley In Final Second, 69-67

Tim Scaletta's Basket Provides Upset Victory

Brannon Has 25, Suder Scores 26 For Black Knights

By JOE MURPHY
News Sports Writer

Time had run out on the scoreboard clock at St. Peter & Paul's gym, but Tim Scaletta's goal was already in the air. Scaletta's goal was already in the air. Scaletta's goal was already in the air.

The deafening roar which was heard as the ball dropped through the cords was the sound of LaSalle's basketball-minded following bursting with the realization that the until-then unkind fortunes of the current Explorer quint had taken a sudden turn for the better and the North Centre Street five had beaten one of the most highly-rated (and deservedly so) teams in the area.

The thrilling contest, met with such enthusiasm by both sides that the referee had to stop action at one point and request a lessening of the din, saw the score change hands 17 times, being deadlocked on eight different occasions.

Valley's seven-point lead at the end of the first quarter, 17-10, was the farthest that the two red-hot teams were apart all night. LaSalle's biggest edge coming at 52-44 early in the hectic final frame.

The Black Knights tore that lead to shreds in a very short time with an effective press which would probably have decided the issue, except that Explorer coach Gary Shook had an ace in the hole — to wit, ace backcourtman Spunk Perlozzo.

Perlozzo Shows The Way

Perlozzo, an excellent ball-handler, came into the game just in time to turn the tide, after Valley had gone ahead 59-53 by stealing everything but the numerals of LaSalle's gold jerseys. The alert and speedy guard showed the Explorers the way through the rugged Valley defense, which was sparked by the ball-hawking play of Joe McIntyre.

Jim Brannon, LaSalle's crack forward who is averaging 20.6 points per game this year, once again was the Explorer's big scoring machine as he pumped in 25 points, mainly on dead-eye shots from his corner position.

Scaletta, who played an exceptional game in every department — shooting, defense, rebounding, and moving the ball — tossed in 19, while Bobby Barth contributed 12.

Larry Suder was the Valley seige gun and the game's high scorer with 26 points, 16 of them in the second half. Ed Cuthbertson proved that Valley too had strength on the bench as the Black Knights' only sub chalked up a dozen points, while Gary Sloan and Kenny Lancaster each had ten points.

LaSalle trailed by 31-29 at intermission, but built a 48-44 third quarter lead and pulled away momentarily as the final frame began.

Boyle Builds Lead To 8

Scaletta started the final eight minutes of play by sinking a classy hook shot from close range. Boyle, most of whose points came during a hot streak in the second period, followed with a rebound shot, and LaSalle led, 52-44.

Cuthbertson started a LaSalle nightmare by sinking a bank shot, Suder hit another field goal, and, after the teams took turns losing the ball on turn-overs, Valley called time out and came back to the floor with their almost-devastating press.

Suder's three point play narrowed the lead to one point, LaSalle's Bill McKinley made a foul shot, Suder connected from outside and the count was knotted at 53 apiece.

Scaletta set up his ultimate winning basket by pulling off a steal with 30 seconds remaining. A lot of things can and did happen in thirty seconds with Valley stealing the ball back, only to lose it on a traveling violation as Cuthbertson in full flight, was unable to decide whether to shoot or pass off.

Nine seconds remained as LaSalle put the ball back in play far upcourt, and the pressing Knights left Scaletta wide open underneath. Suddenly, the Explorers awoke from the nightmare and had their third win of the season in seven tries — and their second straight — in the books.

Valley now owns a 3-2 mark.

OILERS COACH — Hugh (Bones) Taylor, former pass receiver for the Washington Redskins, yesterday was named head coach of the Houston Oilers of the American Football League. Phil Dickens, Indiana Grid Coach, Quits

Had One Winning Team In 8 Years

BLOOMINGTON (UPI)— Phil Dickens, under student fire for fielding only one winning football team in eight years, resigned as Indiana's football coach.

University President Elvis Stahr Jr., announced that the 50-year-old Dickens decided to call it quits after this year's gloomy 2-7 record and will become general manager of the school's off-campus physical facilities.

Search For New Coach

Officials indicated the university will begin immediately a search for a new coach to lead the Hoosiers into a brighter era on the gridiron.

Dickens was jolted first by a one-year personal suspension and then by an NCAA four-year team probation when he came out of the West to build Indiana into a football power-house.

In his letter of resignation he told Stahr, "our efforts have not yielded the results we had hoped for and which I am sure the university, the student body and our loyal alumni and friends throughout the state had also hoped for."

The campus newspaper, The Indiana Daily Student, recently editorialized that 20 years of losing Indiana football was "intolerable" and that the last season "has been harder to swallow than most."

Stahr, former Secretary of the Army and a former athlete, told the annual IU football banquet that he did not come to Indiana to watch the demise of intercollegiate football.

"Indiana university is on the move and football will move with it," he said then.

Dickens' "open-end" contract has 12 years to run. It will terminate automatically when Dickens reaches the age of 62.

The contract stipulated that Dickens could request reassignment of duties or Athletic Director Bill Orwig could recommend such reassignment.

Stahr announced the resignation "with feelings of official regret and genuine personal reluctance."

Played At Tennessee

Dickens, a native of Hartsville, Tenn., played football at Tennessee under Gen. Robert Neyland. He coached at Tennessee Junior College and Cookeville, Tenn., High School. Then he had coaching stints at Wofford, North Carolina State, Georgia Pre-Flight, Mississippi State, Wofford again, and Wyoming.

Giants Sign Frick

NEW YORK (AP)— The New York Giants, pulling out all the stops in an effort to reverse their plunge to the bottom of the National Football League, signed another of their draft choices Tuesday, and John Frick of Ohio University.

The signing of Frick, 6-3 and 225 pounds, gave the Giants 10 of their 17 draft picks already signed. The Giants made 19 picks in the 1964 draft, but two were futures.

Frick was the No. 9 choice of the Giants. Denver in the American Football League picked Frick No. 14.

Taylor Succeeds Baugh As Oilers' Head Coach

Sammy Accepts Job As Backfield Coach To Escape Office

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)— Hugh (Bones) Taylor signed his first professional contract as a head coach Tuesday, succeeding an old friend, Sammy Baugh, as field manager for the Houston Oilers.

The former Washington Redskins pass receiver accepted a one-year contract with the former American Football League champions and promptly named Baugh as his backfield coach.

Baugh said Taylor, 41, will be as good a head coach as a pass receiver.

"He was the best receiver I saw in my 16 years as a pro and I think he'll make a hell of a pro coach," said Baugh, who abandoned Friday a contract that extended through the 1965 season.

Baugh had lured Taylor away from the San Diego Chargers last June when K. S. (Bud) Adams Jr., owner of the Oilers, abruptly fired Frank (Pop) Ivy and gave the job to Baugh, an assistant Ivy had hired two weeks earlier.

Clarifies Point

"I want to make one thing clear," the balding 6-foot-5 Taylor said at a news conference.

"I didn't come here from San Diego to cut Sam's throat. If I thought anyone felt I came here to get Sam's job I'd walk away right now."

While Carroll Martin, Oilers general manager, said there was a one-year contract both Adams and Taylor said there really is no contract.

"I'll agree it is one year at somewhere less than $1 million but that really doesn't matter," Taylor said. "I wouldn't want any kind of a contract if Mr. Adams becomes unhappy with my work. There's no need for a formal contract."

"Bones is an easy man to get along with," Adams said.

Leaves For Ranch

Baugh, who resigned so he could spend more time on his 6,300-acre west Texas ranch, attended the news conference and then left immediately for the ranch.

"I'll be at work there tomorrow morning," Baugh said. "That's what I love. I like coaching football but Bones can have all that office work that goes with the job. I want to confine my football to the practice field."

Taylor said he will not complete his staff of assistants until after New Year's Day.

"I have several under consideration, including Lou Rymkus," he said.

Rymkus, a Houston resident, coached the Oilers to the AFL's first championship in 1960 but was fired after a slow start in 1961.

Rymkus One Of Best

Adams said Friday he thought Rymkus was one of the best offensive line specialists in football.

After eight years with the Redskins without missing a game, Taylor was an assistant at Florida State, head coach at Arkansas State, and an assistant to Baugh with the New York Titans before spending 18 months at San Diego.

Baugh said that after leaving the Titans he received inquiries about Taylor from three pro clubs — Cleveland, Baltimore, and San Diego.

"I went to San Diego for one reason," Taylor said. "Sid Gillman is the master of team organization — the best in the business."

Gillman is head coach and general manager of the Chargers.

"I learned most of my football through mistakes made by myself and others around me," Taylor said. "But on team organization, I turned to Gillman, the best."

If the weather outside is stormy and the field is slippery Sunday at Cleveland Stadium the National Football League's title game may turn into a field goal duel between Cleveland's Lou Groza and Baltimore's Lou Michaels.

Strangely enough, both of the placement experts have worked for Blanton Collier, the Cleveland coach. Michaels was a top flight college tackle at Kentucky under Collier in 1957. Groza broke in with the old Cleveland Browns of the All-America Conference in 1946 when Collier was an assistant to Paul Brown.

In fact, Don Shula, the Baltimore coach, also has a Collier connection. In addition to playing with the Browns in the early 1950s, Shula served as an assistant under Collier at Kentucky in 1959.

Plays 18th Season

Groza, who looks more like a banker than a football player, is playing his 18th season of pro football, counting four in the AAC.

At the age of 40 he sports a bit of an alderman's paunch but that doesn't bother his kicking. Groza had a fabulous .667 percentage this year with 22 of 33 and a total of 115 points, a personal high. Except for a last game spurt by Lenny Moore of the Colts, Groza would have been the league's scoring champ.

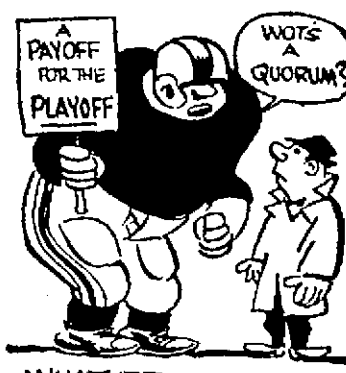

This has been a memorable year for Michaels who still holds the league record of 26 set in 1962, but made only 21 of 41 in 1963.

Scored 104 Points

The 28-year-old defensive end was suspended indefinitely by Pittsburgh coach Buddy Parker for an infraction of the training rules at training camp and was reinstated on a probationary basis a few days later. He soon was shunted along to the Baltimore Colts. As a kicker he made good with 17 of 35 field goals and scored 104 points.

Although Michaels played regularly with the Steelers last year, he was not needed as a full time operator with the Colts. Coach Don Shula used Michaels as a late game relief man for Gino Marchetti.

CORAL GABLES (UPI)— Special T., owned by Mrs. A. Fessenden, scored his third consecutive victory Tuesday by winning the $3,000 Rippey Purse at Tropical Park.

Special T. overtook favored Apple Core, owned by Mrs. Janel Stokley, in the stretch and won by one length. Apple Core led almost from the start of the six-furlong allowance test. Speedy Lady, the early leader, finished third, a neck behind Apple Core in the field of eight juveniles.

Jockey Bill Zakoor guided Special T. to an $8.80, $3.60, $2.60 payoff; Apple Core paid $2.80 and $2.20, and Speedy Lady returned $2.40. Special T.'s winning time was 1:11 1-5 over a fast track.

A daily double of $198.80 resulted when Hark 2nd ($8.00) won the first race and Train Robber ($37.80) captured the second.

Building Tilts; Hotel Next Door Evacuated

CAIRO (AP)— Police evacuated more than 100 tourists from a hotel in downtown Cairo Tuesday after a 19-story building under construction next door started tilting. The structure, intended as a hotel and valued at $600,000, has been under construction five years. It developed a slight list three months ago. By Monday the building was listing more than three inches and authorities decided to clear the area, demolish the top five floors and resume work from there.

Card of Thanks

We wish, in this manner,

to thank our many friends for their

Flowers, Cards and other acts of kindness, during the death of my husband, Addison J. De Haven.

Mrs. Addison J. De Haven

and Daughter

In Memoriam

In Memory of Marshall Croston, who passed away, 3 years ago today.

So swiftly through death's door you went.

So sad and sudden was the call.

To think you could not say goodbye,

Before you closed your eyes.

In our heart a memory is kept.

Oh God, grant eternal rest.

Sadly missed by Wife, Children

and Grandchildren

In Memory of our Father, Ralph C.

Adams, who passed away November 20, 1964.

God gave you to us for awhile.

Then He came and took your smile.

He left our eyes filled with tears.

But memories that we'll hold dear.

So now you have found eternal rest.

Daddy dear.

Sadly missed—

His Three Daughters

In Memory of Georgia Mae Weaver,

who passed away 23 years ago, December

21, 1941.

December brings sad memories

Of a loved one gone to rest.

But we will never be forgotten.

By the ones who loved her best.

We often look at her picture.

Smiling, as she seems to say

Don't grieve, I'm only sleeping.

Will see you all someday.

Sadly missed by Mother and Brothers,

Charles and Jimmy

Press, Legal Profession In Crime Reporting Row

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The press and the legal profession are involved in a growing controversy over curbs on crime reporting.

It was triggered by the Warren Commission. In its report on President Kennedy's assassination, the commission asserted that the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald demonstrated how press coverage of a crime may prejudice a defendant's right to a fair trial.

It recommended that representatives of the bar and the news media get together and work out a code to "bring about a proper balance between the right of the public to be kept informed and the right of the individual to a fair and impartial trial."

The consultations suggested by the commission have not yet taken place. But some segments of the bar have proceeded on their own with attempts to restrict pre-trial publicity.

The New Jersey Supreme Court last month warned that it would consider it unprofessional conduct for any member of the bar — prosecutor or defense counsel — to talk to reporters about such things as confessions, past criminal records or the evidence to be presented in a case.

The court also recommended that "disciplinary action" be taken against any police official who makes statements to the press about the strength of the case, or the nature of the evidence, against a defendant awaiting trial.

Early this month, the new U.S. district attorney for Connecticut, Jon O. Newman, made public an edict to his staff which forbids federal prosecutors to make any out-of-court statements that might be considered prejudicial to the defendant.

In Washington, D. C., a Justice Department official said that Newman's order reflected long-standing instructions to all U. S. attorneys. The instructions are contained in a confidential manual which was issued in 1956.

In mid-December, the Philadelphia Bar Association's Board of Governors made public a snide comment.

Despite the popular belief, a snide comment does not wait until the driver nor a passenger suffered any injuries, however.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia's 1964 highway fatality toll climbed to 448 with the death late Monday night of Mrs. Nannie I. Burnite of Edgerton.

The toll a year ago stood at 419.

State Police said Mrs. Burnite, 72, was a passenger in a pickup truck which plunged down an embankment along W. Va. 49 just east of Williamson.

The driver, Larn Marcus, 67, all U. S. attorneys. The instructions are contained in a confidential manual which was issued in 1956.

In mid-December, the Philadelphia Bar Association's Board of Governors made public a snide comment.

Despite the popular belief, a snide comment does not wait until the driver nor a passenger suffered any injuries, however.

A LITTLE SNOW, a skid, and this car wound up on its side in an excavation in New York. Neither the driver nor a passenger suffered any injuries, however.

Lost Plane Wreckage Is Discovered

Bodies Of Two Moorefield Men Found In Cockpit

The bodies of two Moorefield men were taken from the twisted wreckage of a single-engine plane near Philippi, W. Va. last night, five days after it disappeared on a routine flight from Clarksburg to Moorefield, according to a UPI dispatch.

Dead were the pilot, Elvin C. Rigglesman, 46, a prominent contractor, and a passenger, Carl S. Barnhart, 54, also of Moorefield.

State Police were led to the wreckage by an unidentified man who said he came upon it in the rugged, snow-covered woods late Tuesday.

Hits Hillside

The plane crashed on a hillside in the northeastern corner of Barbour County, about 20 miles from here off W. Va. 92. Police said there was enough snow on the ground that the wreckage could not be seen from the air.

One body was found pinned inside the wreckage, the other half out of the plane which was described as "completely demolished." An ambulance driver said both bodies were badly broken and frozen.

An intensive search has been underway in the mountainous region since Friday morning, with more than 20 planes and more than 100 ground volunteers participating. The Air Force sent four rescue planes to assist the Civil Air Patrol and private aircraft in the search. Ground volunteers have included CAP members and State Policemen.

Sight Wreckage

The wreckage of a plane which crashed about two years ago was found by volunteers who were searching for the Rigglesman plane Tuesday.

Ralph Fisher, editor of the Moorefield Examiner, said he and three other men were scouring the area in a plane owned by the Island Creek Coal Co. when they sighted the wreckage about 15 miles southwest of Moorefield.

The plane, privately owned, crashed during the Oak Hill marking program two years ago. Nobody was injured in the crash but the plane was never recovered.

The plane took part in the campaign, authorized by the state, to mark trees that were suffering from Oak Wilt so that foresters could locate them from the ground for treatment.

CAP Joins Search

Cumberland squadron of the Civil Air Patrol was called into the search Sunday night and made flights on assigned search patterns Monday and yesterday.

Several planes from the Cumberland CAP unit, along with three CAP planes from other squadrons in Maryland, took part in the search which was called off early last night after word was received that the plane had been located.

Capt. Richard Cody, commander of the Cumberland squadron, was mission coordinator under the direction of CAP base headquarters in Elkins, W. Va.

CAP fliers taking part included Joseph Wilson, Monty Bowen and William Barnhart. They were joined by other pilots including David Kline, Dale Welsh and W. Donald Smith.

About 12 CAP cadets headed by Capt. Dale Nicholson, cadet commander, took part in the search which was under the supervision of Lt. Col. C. W. Carly, Smithburg, Maryland Group 5 commander.

Were In Cockpit

West Virginia state police at Elkins last night confirmed that both men were found dead in the cockpit of the plane.

The bodies of Mr. Rigglesman, who lived on Main Street in Moorefield and was a well known contractor, and Mr. Barnhart, an engineer for the Elvin C. Rigglesman Construction Company, were taken to a Philippi, W. Va. funeral home.

Authorities said the plane crashed, but did not burn, in a stand of timber near a point where Barbour, Preston and Tucker County corner, and was on course for the flight from Clarksburg to Moorefield when the plane went down.

Survivors of Mr. Rigglesman include a wife and a son and of Mr. Barnhart, a wife and one daughter.

In the air, the CAP has had an average of 40 planes each day with assistance from Rescue units from Selfridge AFB, Mich., and Eglin, Fla., AFB.

Edward Eichner, president of the Camper Club. The bottling plant contributed five cents on each case sold this month.

Payment Ruling Appealed

The Cumberland Contracting Company and the State Accident Fund have filed an appeal in Allegheny County Circuit Court from a decision of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

The plaintiffs entered the appeal contending the commission erred in issuing its award of compensation December 1, 1964, in the claim of James W. McKee, deceased, and Brent L. McKee, his widow, of Post Office Box 133, Paw Paw.

The appeal indicates the plaintiffs allege the commission erred in finding that the widow was wholly dependent upon her deceased husband's support at the time of his injury and death on August 21, 1964.

The plaintiffs allege that evidence presented indicates the claimant was self-supporting and partially dependent on her late husband.

Also filed in Circuit Court was a friendly suit which was settled out of court.

In the friendly suit Linda James, daughter of Henry E. and Freda M. James, RD 2, Creek Road, claimed she was injured when she fell in the driveway of neighbors, Ronald Eugene Porter and his wife, Mona Lee Porter.

A settlement of $110 was reached in the friendly suit. The original sum sought was $500.

Slot Machines Confiscated At Bedford

Pennsylvania State Police yesterday afternoon confiscated 15 slot machines which were found in the Deibert Feed Mill on Industrial Avenue in Bedford.

Joining in on the confiscation of the "one armed bandits" were State Police from Hollidaysburg and Bedford.

The machines are being stored temporarily at the Bedford County Jail pending a court order to destroy them, police said.

Rains Are Boosting Water Reserves

The city's water reserves are being restored by the fall rains. A report to the Mayor and Council Monday showed that Lake Gordon is four feet, one inch below the spillway and Lake Koon is down 25 feet. This time last year, Gordon was down three feet, nine inches and Lake Koon, 23 feet.

Water consumption last week averaged 12,555,000 gallons daily, a bit above last year's 11,532,000 gallons.

Orderly Plan On Colleges Advocated

BALTIMORE (AP)—Conferees attending a meeting called by the Maryland Advisory Council for Higher Education were told Monday that if education planners didn't know where they were going, there wasn't much use in having meetings.

"If we don't take practical steps until some master plan is made and have an orderly development, then I think it is almost futile to have discussions of these things," said Mrs. Gordon V. France.

The president of the Maryland division of the American Association of University Women, Mrs. France was speaking at a "Conference on Community Viewpoint on Higher Education."

The conference was called by the council to get the viewpoints of community leaders, whom they expect to help in deciding what course higher education in Maryland would take during the next decade.

But, according to Mrs. France, if the council really wants to consider the needs of higher education in the state, it should go to the state's top official and legislative body.

She suggested that the council find out if Gov. Tawes and the General Assembly are planning to coordinate the state's colleges and university.

The same commission report that urged establishment of the higher education council also called for a coordinated effort.

Mrs. France said she felt that college expansion should be held off except in the case of emergencies, to be continued on a larger scale after a master plan coordinating the expansion is drawn up.

She said that planning officials are presumably, "galloping off in different directions."

Residents of the area are urged to be wary of mail solicitations from out-of-state insurance unless they are licensed to do business in Maryland, according to John F. Workmeister Jr., president of the Allegheny-Garrett Counties Independent Insurance Association.

F. Douglass Sears, state insurance commissioner, has cautioned Maryland citizens they run the risk of not being insured when they respond to mail solicitations from out-of-state if that company is not licensed to do business in Maryland.

Maryland law prohibits the publishing or broadcasting of any type of advertisement of an unlicensed company or unlicensed agent, but the state insurance commissions does not have any control over mail sent into the state.

Tawes Reports State In Good Financial Shape

Sales, Income Taxes Are Ahead

By TOM STUCKEY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Tawes looked over rosy new estimates Tuesday of how much money will flow into the Maryland treasury in the next 18 months and said the state "is in good shape."

The report on expected receipts, given to the governor at a meeting of the Board of Revenue Estimates, covers the rest of the 1964-65 fiscal year and all of 1965-66.

The board made a preliminary estimate Oct. 30 which was used to justify repeal of a pending increase in the state income tax of from 3 per cent to 4 per cent, but not all state funds were included in that report.

The new report estimates that total state revenue will be $675,840,378 for the fiscal year ending next June and $728,622,670 for the following year. By comparison, actual receipts for the previous fiscal year were $591,735,203.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, chairman of the board, said at the meeting that both sales and income tax collections are running a little ahead of the estimates made in October.

He said there is "every reason to believe that Maryland's economy will continue to provide revenues in fulfillment of these estimates."

The Maryland economy is moving so fast, the comptroller said, that it is likely that the board will meet again about the end of February to provide the latest possible figures for use by the governor and legislature in completing the budget and supplementary budget.

14 County Conservation Practices Are Requested

The Allegheny County Development Group of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service at its recent annual meeting selected 14 conservation practices which are most needed in the county next year.

The practices have been sent to state officials for approval and then the local ASCS office, 126 Union Street, will begin to take applications from farmers who are interested in taking part in the program.

The practices selected were seeding of permanent legumes and grasses; application of liming materials; planting of trees; establishment of strip cropping systems; development of springs for livestock; construction of ponds for livestock; stands of forest trees; sod water ways; permanent vegetative cover; diversion terraces; dams and ponds; open and tile drainage ditches; cover crop for winter protection and wildlife food plots.

The government bears 50 per cent of the cost of most of the conservation practices, with the individual farmer the other 50 per cent.

Attending the meeting to select the practices were Richard Bennett, work unit conservation officer of the SCSS; Wilbert R. Paul, Theodore Stegmaier, Floyd Buser, Charles Harvey, soil conservation supervisors; Joseph M. Steger, county agent; Benson B. Snyder, representative of the Farmers Home Administration; Harry M. Hartman and John Brode, assistant district foresters; Vernon J. Loar, president of the Allegheny County Farm Bureau; Brady H. Dolly, chairman of the ACS committee; Gene Teter, ASC committee member, and Miss Elizabeth Hoover, manager of the ASCS office.
